

ABSTRACT

Increase or decrease in rubber extruding rate can be freely adjusted while keeping a sectional shape of a rubber extruded intermediate constant. A discharge port of a rubber flow path of a die plate is of a flat shape with a lower section and a higher section and with a height varying along a width direction. An extruding speed from the discharge port of the die plate is made uniform at positions along the width direction of said rubber extruded intermediate.